THE INAUGURAL BUCKMINSTER FREE FLIGHT GALA 'PART DEUX'

To quote "Conversation about the weather is the last refuge of the unimaginative" Oscar Wilde

Therefore:

Following the snow storms from the preceding week and the prospect of average wind strength the decision was declared across the media to come fly at Buckminster. Clearly the weather was going to do its best to stifle our fun and it did its best!... the wind was as predicted but the misty rain and perishing cold kept the hoards at bay. A dozen or so hardy folk arrived for the start of the Contest but most took to the warmth of the facilities and refreshments to cogitate and chin wag, clearly an upside to what we have been used to. For the few hardy flyers cheered on by the remainder... flying catapult, vintage rubber and E36 the day proved an experience. Trevor Payne clearly the 'victor ludorum' as the others perished after token flights. The maximum was set at 1min. 30secs which was sensible for the wind speed and direction.

As the near freezing rain settled in a truce was formed and all resorted to the event building to chew over the venue, its potential and sip another hot cup of coffee. Despite the weather the consensus was unanimous that Buckminster will prove to be an invaluable addition to our flying calendar both for the mini classes as well as trimming. Yes we will need to get the format right, be flexible in our choice of dates, the duration and classes we fly but we can make 'smaller' field flying work.
